

Table with 10 columns and 1000 rows. The table contains a grid of data points, likely representing a time-series or spatial analysis. The columns are labeled with various parameters, and the rows represent individual data points or time steps. The data is organized into a structured grid format.